

LONDON IS CLEARING UP IRISH SITUATION

Griffith Presents Modifications in New Constitution to Conform to British Views.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau. London, June 7.

As far as London is concerned the Irish situation is satisfactory, to-night, Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, this morning presented the detailed modifications in the proposed constitution designed to conform to the reply made to the six British demands and spent two hours in explaining them to Winston Churchill, Lord Birkenhead and Sir Laming Worthington Evans. Legal constitutional experts will spend to-morrow studying precedents and the novel solution by way of a compromise which Griffith is reported to have proposed. It is understood that had the proposals not been satisfactory the conference would have been broken off to-day.

Mr. Churchill has taken personal charge of Michael Collins's demand that a committee inquire into the Pettigoe incident, and likewise the charge that the British troops fired on a hospital with a machine gun. The Sisters of the hospital telegraphed King George direct demanding protection, and Lord Stamfordham, private secretary to the King, replied by telegram that the King had ordered the communication sent to a competent authority.

The report is circulating here to-day that a truce arrangement has been reached in the Bealeek and Pettigoe salient whereby the crown forces will evacuate the Free State territory at Pettigoe if the rebels will evacuate Ulster territory at Bealeek. It is believed no action is likely to be taken here until the British see how the election and the choice of a new Government for Ireland works out.

British friends of Ireland are discouraged by the attack on the home of one of the Irish independent candidates, believing that the ability of the independent candidates to stand in the election is the best test of the sincerity of the Collins-De Valera pact and of the ability of the two signatories to carry out the provisions of it.

If most of the independents are terrorized into withdrawal suspicion will be cast on the entire new Irish Government, in British minds, and the way again prepared for intervention. There is some talk in Tory circles to-night of dissolution immediately after Parliament convenes Monday, or immediately after the finance bill has been passed.

This talk is based upon the belief that the Irish arrangement will be found impossible to carry out and that it will be necessary for Premier Lloyd George to counter with a mandate to reconquer Ireland. In both Government and Irish circles, however, such optimism was expressed to-night as to indicate that both want to give the new Government a chance.

LONDON, June 7 (Associated Press).—The revised draft of the Irish Constitution, brought to London by Arthur Griffith, provides, among other things, says the Evening News, "that Ireland shall remain within the Empire in the same way as a dominion." "Decisions of the Privy Council," says the newspaper, "shall be final in all constitutional matters concerning the Free State, subject to certain conditions. Assent of the Crown must be obtained to all legislation in the Free State. The oath of allegiance, provided in the Anglo-Irish treaty, shall be observed."

REFORM WAVE THREATENS FRENCH BATHING SUITS

Deauville, Trouville and Paris Plage Too, Will Miss the Fashionable Garb for New Regulations Are Based Upon Slogan 'Hide Your Nakedness.'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau. Paris, June 7.

The reform wave has reached the popular French bathing beaches, such as Deauville, Trouville, Etretat and Paris Plage, and no longer will the single piece, tight fitting bathing costume be permitted to annoy the susceptible morals of summer visitors. The municipal officials of the French resorts have decided that the naughty reputation which has been gained by the Channel bathers since the war must be removed, and henceforward the slogan at all resorts is to be "Hide your nakedness."

In this campaign Deputy Herriot, who already has proclaimed himself the champion of the general reaction, has aligned himself with the beach officials. A law just promulgated at one Northern resort, to be a model for others, insists that bathers must wear suitable costumes, not revealing too much, and if they don their costumes in hotels they must not parade the sands unless adequately covered with a long bathrobe.

So stringent is this latest edict that bathers will be prohibited even from indulging in such gentle exercises as leapfrog or teaching maidens how to do the Australian crawl for fear that touchy holiday folk may be shocked by ostensible moral laxity.

The rules for the Riviera, where the beach season is in full swing, are as follows:

"Nobody will be permitted to bathe who does not wear a complete costume. Dressing or undressing on the beach is forbidden. Bathers who remain on the beach in costume must preserve a proper attitude, doing nothing which will offend the susceptibilities of family parties. Games inimical to the moral tranquility or the safety of bathers are forbidden."

It is not stated whether the one piece bathing suit is considered a "complete costume," according to Riviera standards.

CARDINAL WARNS IRISH DIVISION MEANS CHAOS

Wants British to Probe Massacres There, Not in Turkey.

HAGGARDSTOWN, Dundalk, Ireland, June 7 (Associated Press).—Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, in the course of a sermon here to-day, said that for 700 years the Irish had been fighting for their freedom, and it seemed within their grasp at last. Unfortunately, he continued, "owing to the folly of our own people there is danger, through dissension and division among ourselves, of our being thrown back into the terrible state of chaos and confusion in which the country has been for the last two or three years."

Referring to the Commission for the investigation of Turkish Massacres, the Cardinal said: "I wish the commission would break its journey and stay in northern Ireland and investigate the massacres there. Doubtless the British Government is doing its utmost to end the crisis in Turkey, but I wish it would pay some attention to the state of our country and do a little job for us before they go to Constantinople or Anatolia."
